Design Plan for a Reading Blog

Faïca Cherenfant

DATE: OCTOBER 2ND, 2026 | COURSE: WEB PROGRAMMING I

My Bookshelf

My Bookshelf is a reading blog where the owner of the blog shares and reviews the books they have read in the past as well as the one(s) they are currently reading. On this blog, the owner can also make and share a list of what they are reading at the moment.

The Website

The Purpose:

This blog is not a great way for its owner to keep track of the books they've read; it is also an amazing way for them to share the joy of reading with others. Overall, this blog is to encourage its owner to read more while encouraging those who come across it to read.

Intended Pages

Home

The "Home" page will welcome the viewers to the My Bookshelf blog and feature a quote from one of the books they've read recently.

Currently Reading

The "Currently Reading" page is where viewers will find all of the books the blog's owner is currently reading. This page will feature a picture of the book, a synopsis and a completion bar to let viewers know how much of the book the owner has read.

Explore

The "Explore" page features books and/or authors that the owner recommends their viewers to check out. The page will be divided into two sections, one section with the list of recommended authors and another with a list of their book recommendations.

About Me

The "About Me" page is for viewers of the vlog to get to know who is behind it. This page is essential for the viewers to be able to feel some sort of connection to the person running the blog. It allows viewers to get a sense of the owner's personality and character. As a result, viewers will relate to the owner and their posts on the blog more easily.

Contact Me

The "Contact Me" page is for viewers of the blog to share their thoughts, comments or questions with the owner of the blog. It is also a great way for viewers to recommend books to them (which will be encouraged).

Target Audience

My Bookshelf's target audience is anyone who enjoys reading and/or discussing literature, whether they are avid readers or occasional readers. This blog is not targeted to a specific age range. It is truly for anyone and everyone who reads.

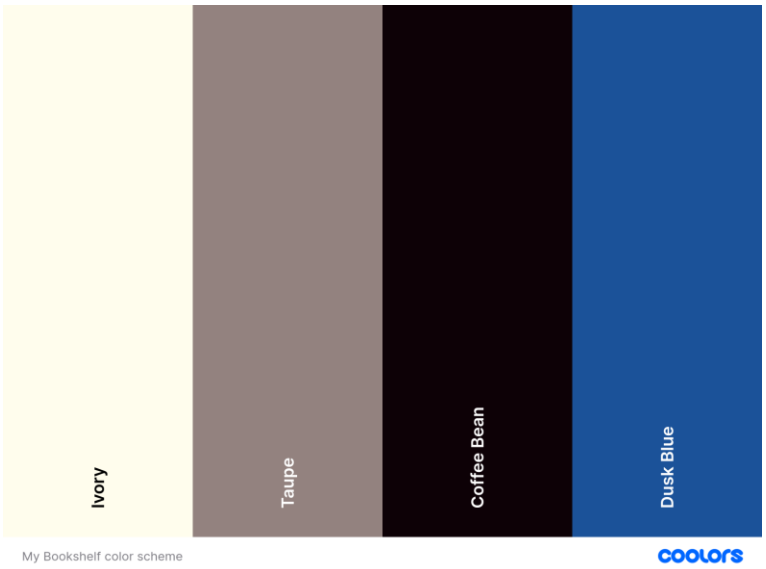

Logo

Source: https://www.flaticon.com/free-icon/library_225993

*I added the text "Me Bookshelf" *

Colour Scheme

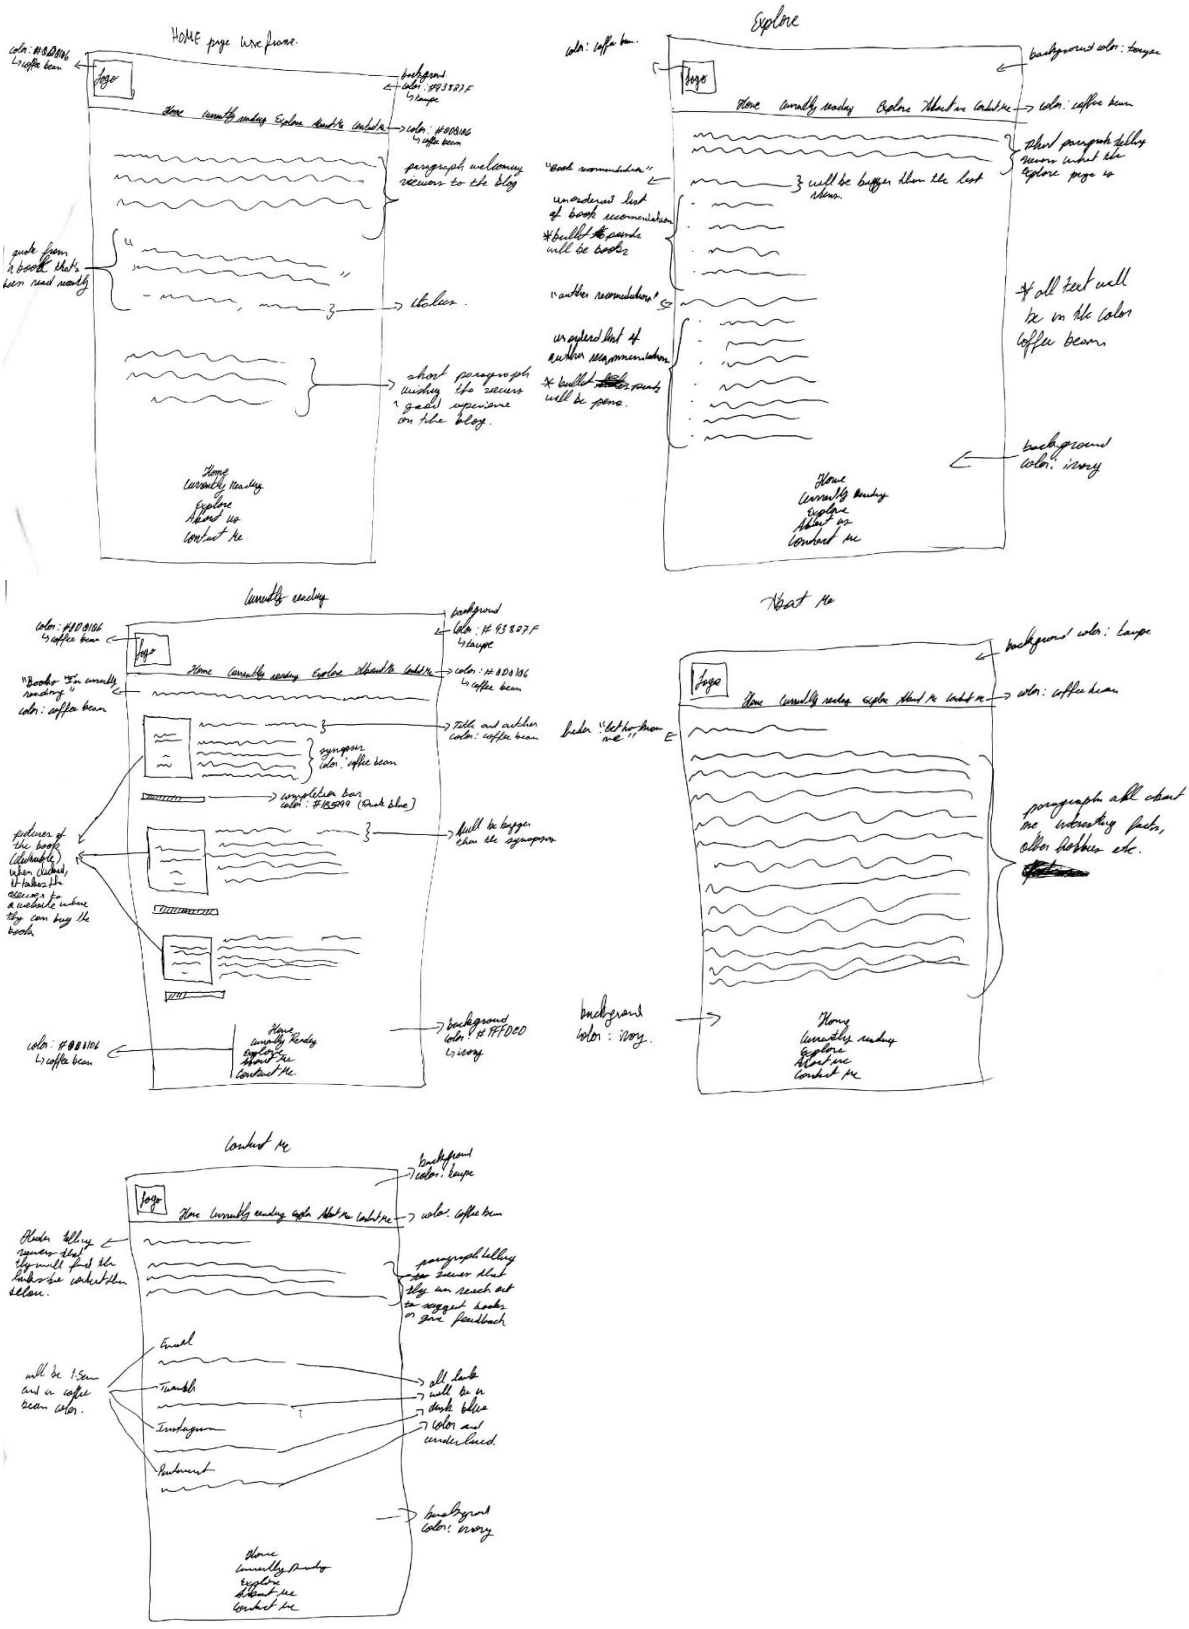

The background of all pages on the website will be Ivory. As for the text, it will all be in the Coffee bean colour. The taupe colour will be used for the boxes that will contain the synopsis of the books on the “Currently Reading” page. Finally, the email and social media links on the “Contact Me” page as well as the progression bar on the “Currently Reading” page will be in Dusk blue.

Banner

Mobile Wireframes

Desktop wireframe

